IN THE WARM sunshine of May or 'mid the pure white winter snow, Mary stands, smiling in her garden home—a constant friend to all Villa Marians. To our dear Lady of Green Tree, who has blessed and guided us in every endeavor during these years, we dedicate REFLECTIONS of 1952.

Our Lady of Green Tree

Watches Over Us

Guided By The Faculty

MONDAY AFTERNOON is anxiously awaited by everyone at Villa Maria, for it brings a visit from our priests. We are sure that you, too, would enjoy meeting Fathers Dennis, Grifferty, Krupa and Coneen.

Traditions, knowledge, friendships . . . memories. All has been realized through the untiring efforts and guidance of our faculty.

Living with us and teaching us, the Sisters have worked to provide every possible material which will mold good, wholesome, Catholic girls.

Our priests, too, have served us unfailingly with knowledge of God. Through Father Gilligan, we have experienced the excitement of "footlights, music and song".

And finally, our lay teachers have developed our domestic, athletic, and social talents.

To the Sisters, Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, the Augustinian Fathers, Miss Bissinger, and Miss Looney, we are truly grateful. You will always hold a special place in our hearts and in our prayers.

FATHER GILLIGAN is one perfect reason why all Villa Marians look forward to public speaking period.

AT HOME or away we are very proud of our coach, teacher, and friend—Miss Bissinger.

To Mother—For your helpful smile and reassuring words . . . For the innumerable lunches you packed during these four years . . . For keeping a watchful eye on the clock each morning . . . For understanding the “serious” problems of a school girl . . .

To Dad—For driving me back to school each Sunday night . . . For making my prom perfect by financing that beautiful gown . . . For encouraging me by your prayers and kind advice . . . For just being “my Dad” . . .

To both of you—For your many quiet and unselfish sacrifices which have given me so very much to cherish and remember, from the bottom of my heart I say, “Thank you. May God love you always!”

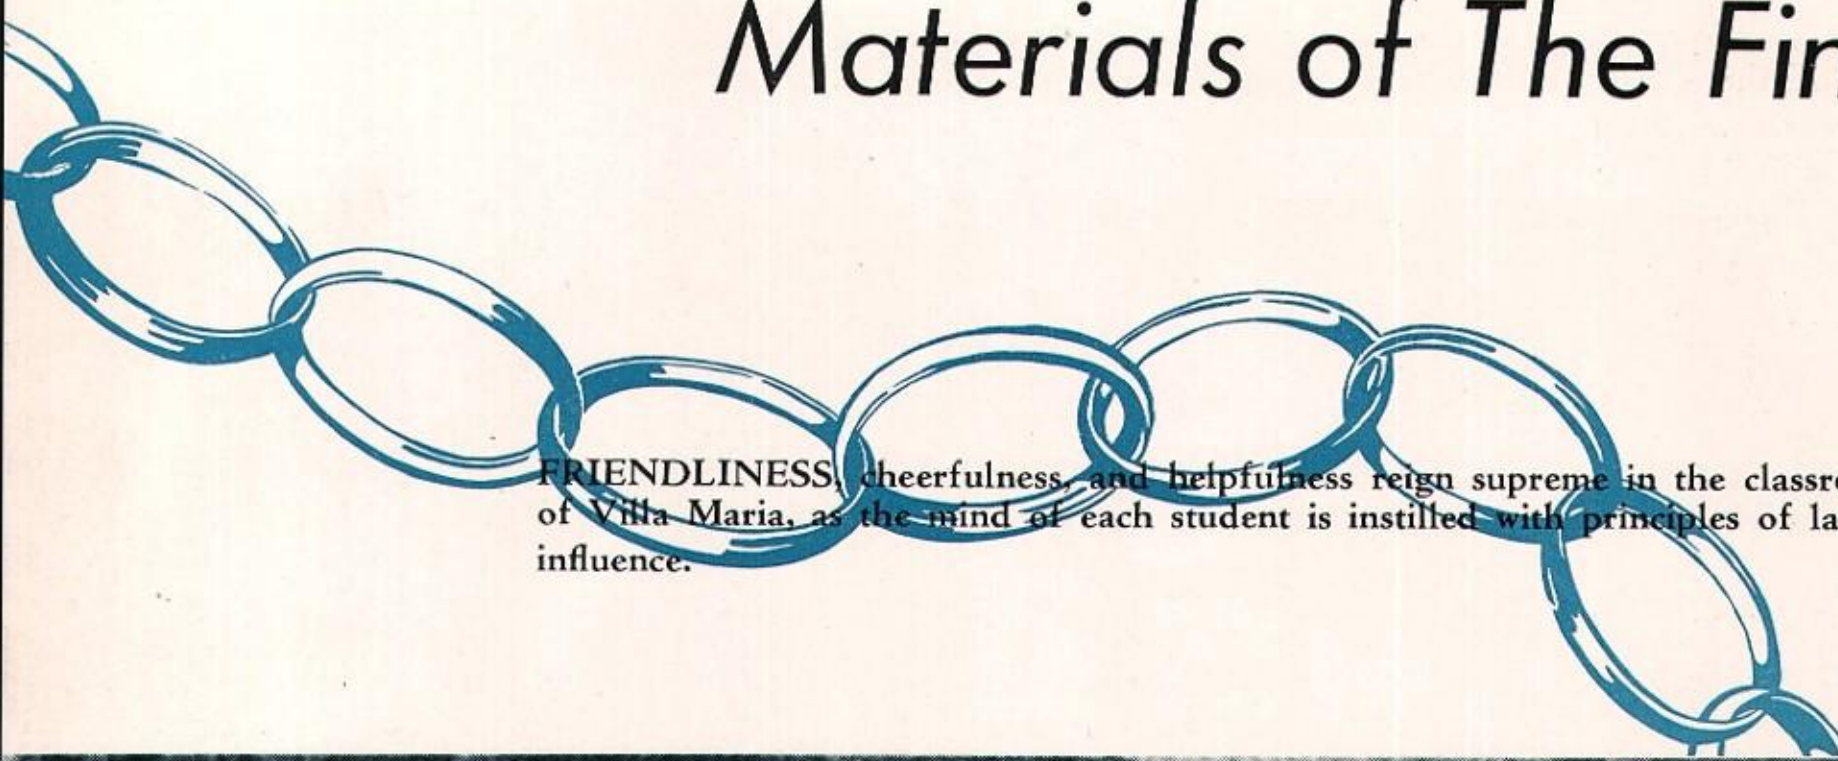

“CHRISTMAS FESTIVITIES at Villa Maria are so heart-warming and beautiful,” says Mrs. O’Hara. Mr. and Mrs. Wunder heartily agree.

MR. AND MRS. VAN WINKLE always find time to lend helpful encouragement to their Villa Marians—present and future.

Freshmen Provide

In September, the class of '55 made its debut at Villa Maria and simultaneously they established a precedent, the largest class in the history of Green Tree. The keen interest exhibited on the first day assured us all that this class would be distinguished in many ways.

The amazing high school routine deadened none of this group's zeal and they rapidly shed their ways of inexperience and emerged successful in all endeavors.

Freshman Day was their first chance to prove themselves, and never have the nursery rhymes been so appealingly enacted. The annual retreat brought varied reactions, but for each new Villa Marian, it gained a place as a tradition we all hold dear.

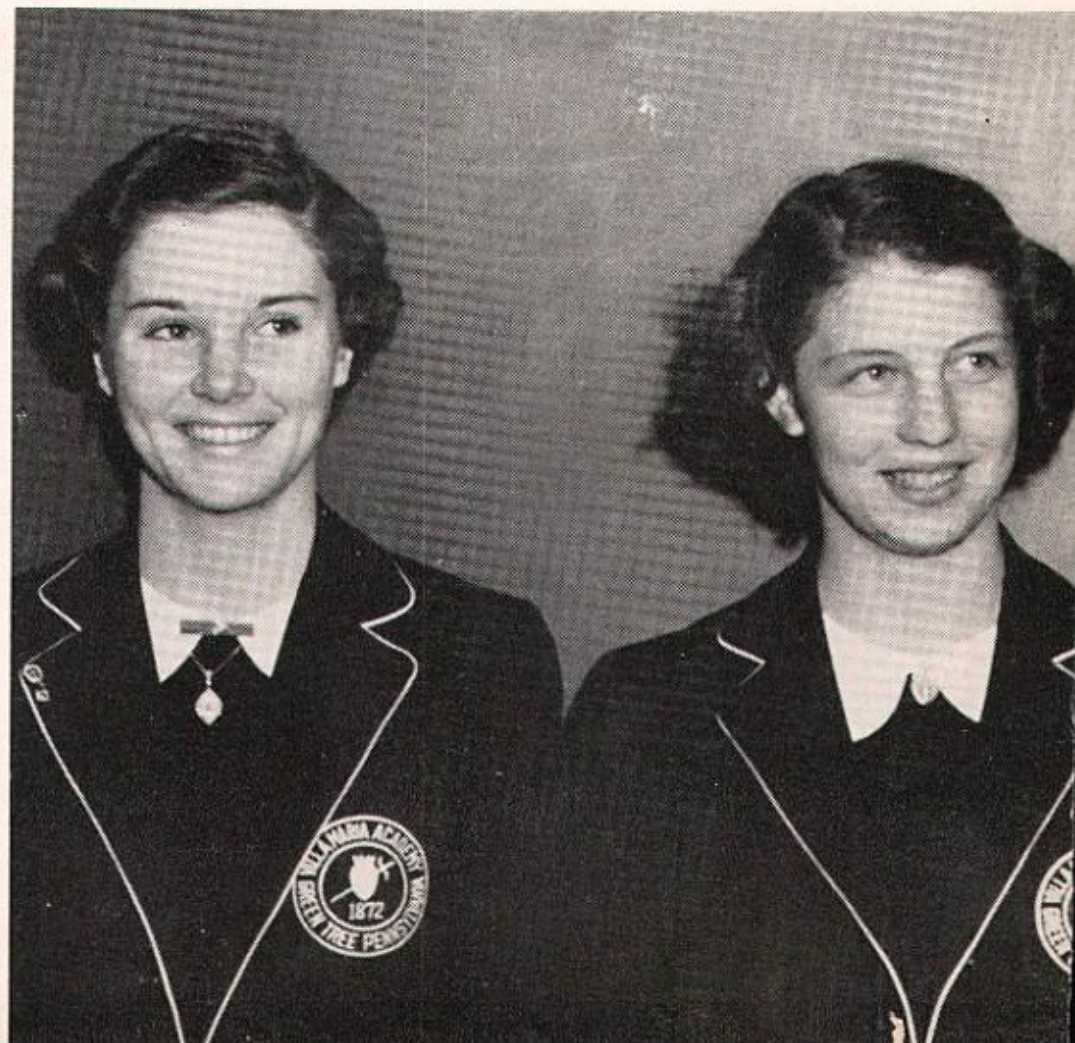

BRUSHES POISED, our freshman artists prepare to display their talents and knowledge in the execution of a color wheel.

"ON THE AIR," signals Ann Hooker to Jeanne Townsend and Ann McClatchy, as the freshmen present Washington Irving's immortal "Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

PATRICIA CLARKSON, president, and Gail Koob, secretary, have combined their efforts to make the freshman class of Villa Maria a lively, spirited and co-operative group.

Dear Mary Alice,
Best of luck
Always, Ros.

The whirl of activities established the freshmen capable as students, entertainers, and even as chair-arrangers. Still, until Christmas, with all its traditional beauty, the youngest class did not feel that they were full-fledged Villa Marians. So Christmas with all its joviality and solemnity arrived. Envy of the seniors in cap and gown inspired dreams of the future. As the final goodnight was sung, the words "For we're proud of all you mean" held new significance.

Flexible To Adapt To

FRESHMEN have the happy privilege and the pleasant task of encouraging devotion to Our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament. Believing in the old adage that "actions speak louder than words," our freshmen try to spend a few minutes each day in the presence of the Blessed Sacrament. Perhaps these visits to chapel are short, but the constancy and the devout conduct of the girls are most edifying and exemplary to the entire student body.

JOHANNA NIGRO presents a lovely picture as she demonstrates one graceful step in the art of dancing. These freshman ballerinas seem to comprehend most readily.

BEAUTEOUS MOUNTAIN ranges and flowing rivers in Pennsylvania become a reality as Patricia Dacey explains the wonders of the Keystone State to her attentive classmates.

The Ways of The Villa

SCHOOL SPIRIT ranks high among the Villa's newcomers. Gail Koob, Patricia Clarkson and Alice McGlynn formulate plans for a Citizenship program which will be presented at the weekly homeroom meeting.

SISTERS, Immaculata and Margaret Gallagher, with their little-sisters of the Villa, Margaret Morris, Gilda Spurio and Mary Jane Barren, admire the small Miraculous Medals for their wrist watches, souvenirs of Big-Little Sister Day.

Quickly the youngest class developed potentialities and demonstrated its athletic powers to the surprise of all. It proudly boasted members on the rosters of both varsities and proved a threat in the inter-class competition.

Big-little sister relations flourished into lasting friendships. The freshmen graciously entertained their big sisters with delightful picnics which were a pleasure to all.

They distinguished themselves in all the athletic clubs. Bowling, swimming and riding were main attractions for them and they spent many leisure hours improving their techniques. Close scores in the blue and white team competition were broken by our energetic freshmen. The ability and spirit displayed by them changed many contests and disappointed many contestants.

Their versatility and their adaptability to all the Villa's ways made this class both interesting and well-liked. Academically, the freshmen were outstanding. Each quarter they proudly added their names to the honor list. Latin declensions and algebraic equations, although elusive, were soon mastered by the keen intellectual powers of the freshmen.

With the blossoming of the spring flowers the talent of our youngest class burst into bloom and, to the surprise of all, they added two leading ladies and a number of graceful dancers to the musical, "Finian's Rainbow".

Through the series of traditions and activities they have firmly cemented the ties to their Alma Mater.

Sophomore year dawned shining and bright on the horizon of high school days. The foundation of beauty, traditions and school spirit having been laid during the first year, the sophomores returned to the Villa confident of the role they would play in the future history of Green Tree.

Having cast off the title of "green freshmen," they assumed a certain dignity and prestige. However, all grown-up manners were carefully laid aside in the excitement of interclass basketball.

Reception into the Children of Mary had been an inspiring incentive for the class of '54 throughout their year as aspirants to this society. Now they felt the thrill of receiving the beautiful gold medals symbolic of the Children of Mary and they wore them with pride.

Christmas at the Villa held more than the usual suspense and expectancy for the sophomores. Santa's visit to Green Tree meant just one thing to them—the long-awaited blue and gold class pin now became a reality, a treasured possession.

First semester was completed, but the new year approached with a promise of bringing many bright opportunities for our little sisters to display their enthusiasm.

SHIRLEY IMPINK is most obliging as Rita Capek demonstrates the practicability of geometry by measuring the angles in a plaid design.

NEW AND interesting highlights are added to the study of grammar through the pages of "Practical English."

SOPHOMORE PROBLEMS receive serious consideration from president, Alice Louise Riemann, and secretary, Gertrude Thornton, who have great faith in the ability of their classmates to be loyal Villa Marians.

Dear Betty
Thank to a wonderful
senior. Be Good!

And Endowed With

WONDERS AND structure of the human eye absorb the interest of each sophomore biologist, as she listens to the fascinating results of Mary O'Brien's research work.

SOPHOMORE MUSIC representative, Marie Bruner, displays her talents as a pianist, while her fellow music majors, Eileen Devine, Elizabeth Lange, Gertrude Thornton, and Alice Louise Riemann analyze the chord.

Sophomores manifested an extra "touch of spirit" with the arrival of basketball season—four of their classmates held positions on the Villa's varsity. With rousing acclaim, they cheered the outstanding performances of their guards and forwards who figured prominently in victories for Villa Maria.

Proving that their interests are most diversified, the class of '54 contributed several graceful dancers to the success of the operetta. Sophomores proudly assert that their classmates added a special bit of color and sparkle to the beauty of Irish folklore.

Once again they had shown their versatile abilities.

Subjects which appeared on the roster for sophomore year were very much to the liking of these lively second-year students. With great enthusiasm, they delved into the intriguing contents of the immortal "Merchant of Venice" by Shakespeare.

Religion had always been a favorite since freshman year, so as sophomores they perused the wondrous mysteries of the Faith with added zeal.

Biology revealed the minute world of the amoeba and paramecium to fascinated minds; geometry developed the power of reasoning among the sophomores and made them ever conscious of that all-important question, "Why?".

Caesar's Gallic Wars spurred their enthusiasm for Latin. Interest characterized the curriculum throughout the entire school year.

June arrived and, confident in knowledge acquired and friendship ties cemented, the class of '54 penned the final page of "Sophomore Year at the Villa".

The Strength To Endure

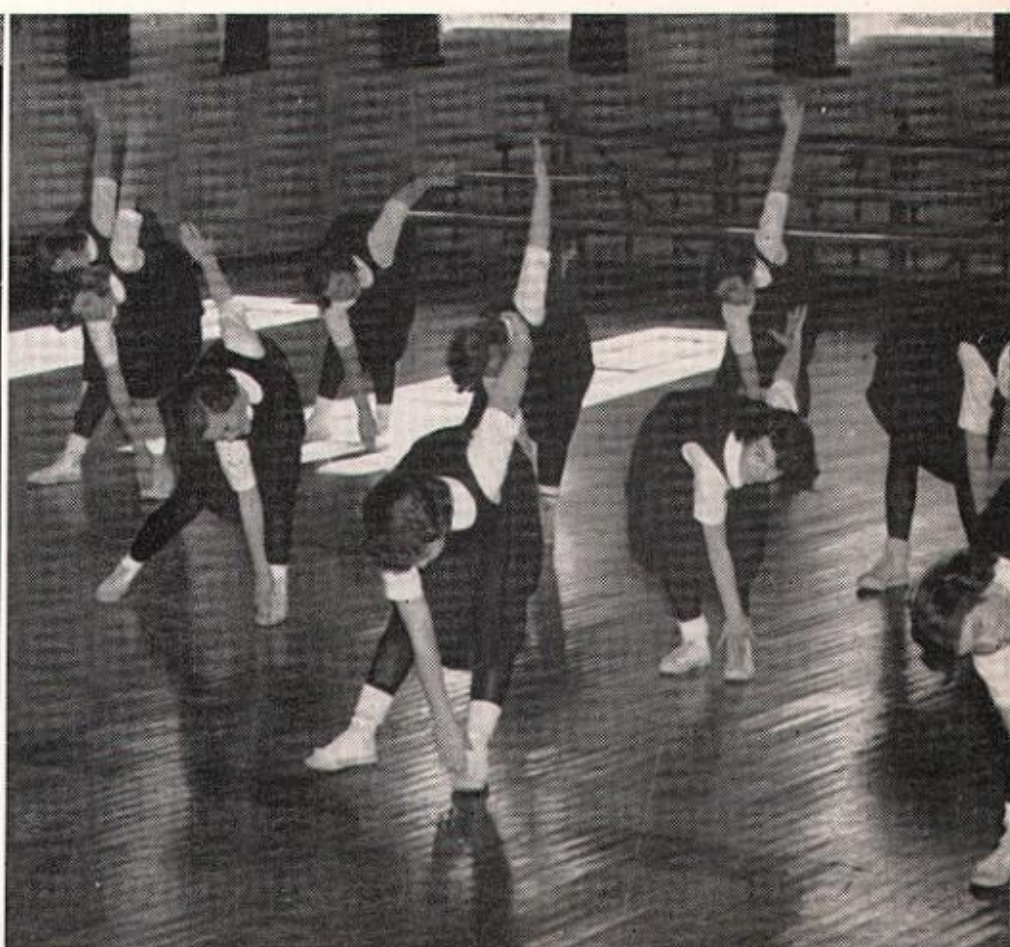

THE BLESSED Virgin Mary smiles with special love and favor upon her sophomores for they proudly bear the title, "Our Lady's Group." Desiring to bring all Villa Marians closer to Mary and to share the warmth of her protection, they strive to model every action on those of their dearest Mother.

Mary's favorite devotion ever remains her Rosary; therefore, each day finds our sophomores kneeling in chapel with the beads within their fingers.

HELEN MITCHELL smiles with pride at the privilege of pinning the cherished class pin on her little sister, Gertrude Lisi. Helen Hickey, Julia Sanza and Eileen Devine share their happiness.

GYM MAY BE strenuous, but the fun and zest of tuning-up exercises make physical education a favorite of all Villa Marians, particularly our spirited sophomores.

Juniors Acquire The

Fascinating thrills and experiences of summer vacation were soon forgotten by eager members of the class of '53 in the excitement of undertaking the dignities and duties of upperclassmen. Two years had molded a firm foundation of knowledge, friendships, and loyalty for Villa Maria. Now, as juniors, they were prepared to contribute their vital part to life at the Villa.

Big-Little Sister Day was entrusted to the care of Our Lady of Fatima; in this beautiful and traditional ceremony, thirty-five proud "big-sisters" adopted shy, yet happy, "little-sisters". The smiling faces of all Villa Marians was proof that the first junior undertaking was a tremendous success.

SINGING IS fun anytime, but when it's in French it's double pleasure! The French students agree this is the most enjoyable way to learn "parler français."

THE PRACTICAL aspect of home economics is demonstrated by Catherine White, Joan Collins, Mary Louise Manis, Mary Ellen Gilmore and Mariann Mink, who are busily engaged in the study of "style."

LED BY the happy efficiency of president Kathleen Riemann, and the diversified talents of secretary Charlotte Townsend, is it any wonder that the juniors are such enthusiastic Villa Marians.

Prestige of Upper Levels

Retreat was considered by the juniors as something very serious and important. They regarded the impressive conferences and private devotions with utmost sincerity. In the inspiring reception ceremony, which climaxed the day's exercises, each girl silently renewed the solemn promises made the previous year upon her entrance into the children of Mary.

Christmas witnessed the fulfillment of every dream! With the glory of the Nativity scene and the splendor of the Real Presence still fresh in their minds and hearts, the junior carolers received their precious class rings. The soft lantern glow reflected the pride on each happy face.

Responsibilities Reveal

JUNIORS AGREE that Saint Joseph's shrine, dedicated to a former Villa Marian, is the ideal place for friends to meet. Here, they may share the memories of past experiences, the happy news of the day's activities and the eager anticipation of future events with their friend and father, Saint Joseph. The gentle saint, to whom was entrusted the care of the Holy Family, loves to act as confidant and guide to his beloved Villa Marians.

OUR CAPABLE junior typists, Kathryn Comly, Mary Barr, Immaculata Gallagher and Anne Gilberti, appear self-satisfied with their work.

PATRICIA AMBROGI, Patricia Melody, Marie McFarland and Mary Kelly look up from their dictation to get a bit of advice from Sister.

New Highlights Here

"MY UNCLE brought this one from Germany," Margaret Keegan explains to her interested classmates as she demonstrates her hobby of doll collecting.

CONSTANCE CUNNINGHAM, Andrea Silva, Catherine White and Gloria Weber spend a few quiet after-school moments in their cozy dormitory of which they are justly proud because it won a prize at room opening.

Scholastic interest of sophomore year increased now as the juniors eagerly met the challenge offered by the subjects of their choice.

Academic students diligently applied themselves to the intriguing contents of their roster. Orations of Cicero opened a new phase of Latin to ambitious minds. The more difficult problems of advanced algebra required additional time and study. Future dreams of college produced nothing but the best.

For those with domestic inclinations, home economics was the ideal course. Fragrant aromas filled the tiny kitchen and lovely dresses assumed new highlights because, "I made it myself".

Juniors who had selected the Commercial Course immediately became engrossed in the fascinating lessons of typing and stenography. Writing and transcribing the various shorthand characters and typing to music were novel experiences. From the beginning, commercial students approached their studies with diligence and ambition; skill and efficiency were developed in comparatively no time.

Soft, musical French phrases attracted many juniors while others preferred the colorful customs and language of Spain.

Father Grifferty's weekly religion classes ranked as the favorite among everyone. These instructions were most enjoyable, as well as beneficial.

Spring approached and each junior contributed her support and interest to the numerous activities—sports, operetta, May procession and, finally, graduation exercises.

Having greatly advanced during this year, they await senior year, confident of their ability to undertake future responsibilities.

Through four years the class of '52 has shared a wealth of pleasures. They have experienced the impressiveness of Christmas, the thrill of basketball games, the glamour of dramatics and, at last, the glory of being "seniors". Along with the senior privileges which were cheerfully accepted, they eagerly assumed the corresponding responsibilities. With enthusiasm and interest they plunged into the whirl of Fourth Year activities, missing none of its beauty for, in time, all this would be memories.

Seniors We Serve

Realizing this year was the final preparation for their choice of a career, they attacked their studies with new interest. The commercial students added the polishing touches to their typing and dictation, while the academic girls found a fascination in chemistry and general math. They have "entered to learn" and will "go forth to serve".

Through chemistry the seniors entered the astonishing world of atoms and molecules. The budding scientists found the subject difficult but interesting. Ability to explain the various everyday chemical reactions was ample satisfaction for all the hard work. Living up to their reputation "initiative", once again the seniors came up with a first—a religion discussion club.

CHRISTIAN MARRIAGE, Labor Union and Interracial Relations were some interesting topics examined in the light of Catholic principles at the Religion Club. The information received will be invaluable to the participants in later years. Here Therese Cavanaugh, Felice Coady, Elizabeth Ecock, Eleanore Westhead and Barbara O'Hara make a recording of a session.

BARBARA O'HARA, Eleanore Westhead and Mary Dwyer find the distillation of water an interesting chemistry experiment.

THE SENIOR leaders are responsible for the many good times all Villa Marians enjoy. Representing the various departments are: Patricia Bourne, Elizabeth Bush, Joan Henry, Mary Louise Hetherington, Alicia Hussey, Rose Kelly, Beau Smith and Mary Van Winkle.

As Shining Examples

ALL PHASES "Latinae" are pursued by our fourth year Latin students. Mary Alice Wolfington solves the puzzle at the board while Rose Kelly gives the rest a hint.

THE BEST TEAM has won! Alicia Hussey proudly accepts the interclass trophy for her classmates from Patricia Bourne. Therese Cavanaugh, Joan Henry and Elizabeth Bush smile their approval.

Yes, senior year was wonderful, complete in every detail, from start to finish. In these last nine months at the Villa, the culmination of all our dreams of beauty and fun have been realized.

The greatest thrill of senior year came in donning our official insignia, the cap and gown. Our initial appearance, attired in Mary's blue, came with retreat. Each senior, cognizant of the fact that the choice of a state of life was the question of the moment, earnestly applied herself and reaped the benefits and graces of the retreat to their fullest extent.

The class of '52, always versatile, proved itself once again in the Senior Play. Our five budding prima donnas have returned to the other side of the footlights but the applause for the success of "The Far-Off Hills" will reverberate for many years. The yen for the glamor of the stage prompted us again and we were acclaimed outstanding performers in "Finian's Rainbow".

As the year progressed, each activity held greater meaning than the previous one. All were handled with the efficiency and precision that had become the hallmark of the class of '52. Our graduation social agenda, Senior Sing, Daisy Chain and the Formal Dance, was brimming with happy memories.

Although we are looking forward to our future careers, we look back at our girlhood days with a longing and a proud feeling. We long for the many friends and good times we have had but we are equally proud to be numbered among the Alumnae of Villa Maria and particularly to be among the members of the class of '52.

To All Our Friends

OUR COMMERCIAL students graduate with a well-rounded education. Through all their training they have kept their goal before them and now they are ready to enter the business world. The characters of stenography have been mastered; no key is too elusive for their typing ability; they have even conquered the techniques of the various other machines. Eileen Collins and Dolores Meredith check Suzanne Jenkinson's tabulation of receipts while Patricia Miller and Mary McKee make copies of a letter.

BUSINESS, medicine and journalism—all prospective careers for these seniors. Joan Henry, librarian, realizing the necessity of choosing the right college, helps the girls by giving them school directories.

GAMES ARE games in any language. So to make Spanish Club more interesting, Kathryn Wunder, president Gloria Lanoce, Mary Ryan, Mary Louise Hetherington and Mary Van Winkle review the rules of "Learn a Lingo."

Each Important Link

"FRIENDSHIP DEPENDS . . . upon character." Villa Maria's organizations have provided opportunities to voice our opinions, to satisfy our spiritual need and to display our artistic talents. These have furnished wholesome character development.

This Insignia Indicates

"United we stand; parted we fall." A motto of the United States government, it is true, but one which is exemplary of the Leader Group of Villa Maria.

Just as we need worthy, capable leaders to unite the faculty with the student body, so earnest, co-operative followers are equally important to insure the well-being and betterment of Villa Maria.

Realizing that a great duty lies toward those girls who have elected us to serve them, we endeavor to bring their problems to a favorable solution and to provide various activities and projects for their enjoyment and benefit.

LEADERS

Reading counter clockwise: Alicia Hussey, president of the Leader Group and president of the Children of Mary; Elizabeth Bush, secretary; Rose Kelly, Music Leader; Mary Louise Hetherington, Social Leader; Patricia Bourne, president of the Athletic Association; Joan Henry, Library Leader; Beau Smith, Alumnae representative and Mary Van Winkle, Literary Leader. In their various departments these girls strive to aid their school-mates.

They Are Choice

Installation Day! A day of happiness for student officers and a solemn occasion too, for it brings to our minds the true meaning of the title "leader". Partaking in the stirring ceremonies of installation, we realize the great responsibility which has been placed upon us. We are fully aware of the important task which rests within our hands as we promise to combine our efforts for the betterment of our school, endeavoring to preserve and to improve the greatness and the beauty of the inheritance which has been transmitted to us.

Yes, the sterling silver bar bearing the school seal, our insignia of office, bestows more than honor upon its possessor. It is a small sign which clearly states, "I am vitally interested in my school, faculty, and schoolmates. My chief concern is seeing how each group may benefit the other and working to the best of my ability to accomplish this task."

"Co-operation spells success" has guided the Leader Group of Villa Maria for many years. While each girl is especially devoted to the requirements of her particular department, she stands ready to lend a helping hand to her fellow leaders.

Ideas which have proved successful and worthwhile in Villa Maria have been adopted by members of the Student Council Association of Catholic Academies. This organization, in turn, has been most beneficial to us and to our school.

Experience afforded us through the Leader group will always be held in our highest esteem.

EVERY VILLA MARIAN, from first grade to twelfth, is represented in the Leader Group of the Villa. Therefore, every problem or plan receives careful consideration.

LEADERS MEET each morning informally to discuss topics and activities for the day. Formal business sessions are held once each month to draw up plans for coming events and to discuss the outcome of past endeavors.

We Pattern Our Actions

FATHER CARNEY, O.S.A., brings our annual retreat to a close with the beautiful devotion, Benediction. Villa Marians face Christmas and the new year with peaceful hearts, pure souls and many good resolutions.

SOLEMNLY PROMISING to be Mary-like in all their actions, these girls experience the happiness of three small words—"Child of Mary."

"To Jesus through Mary" is the beautiful phrase which shines before the eyes of each Villa Marian as she strives to become a true and devoted "child of Mary".

After passing a year of probation, aspirants approach that all-important day, December seventh. On the eve of Mary's greatest feast, our hearts swell with love and happiness as the priest solemnly places about each aspirant's neck the ribbon of Mary's blue and the small gold medal which reads, "Congregation of the Children of Mary".

Having attained this high goal, we combine our efforts to increase devotion to Mary and to perform Catholic Action.

Business meeting, Holy Rosary, recitation of Mary's office and workshop constitute the monthly program of this society.

After Our Lady

Each class is devoted to some specific duty in the Children of Mary. The Eucharistic Group, comprised of freshmen, fosters love for the Blessed Sacrament; sophomores encourage devotion to Our Lady; promoting drives which will aid the Missions is the happy project of the juniors; in preparation for the future, seniors engage in the promotion of Catholic Action.

Nevertheless, the constant aim and cherished purpose of Villa Marians is helping others. Old people from the Sacred Heart Free Cancer Home and Children from Saint Edward's Home hold a special place in all our hearts.

Another great pleasure is derived from preparing Thanksgiving baskets for the poor.

To us, our most cherished possession will ever be Our Blessed Lady's medal; our greatest pride, bearing the title "Children of Mary".

CHILDREN OF MARY representatives display dolls which portray different religious communities and saints, a united project of the Catholic Academies.

SENIORS ENJOY examining the contents of holy card books collected at workshop. The real pleasure came in distributing them and visiting with the patients at the Sacred Heart Cancer Home.

WE ARE ALL extremely proud of Mimi Barker '51, whose picture appeared recently on the cover of a national magazine, proving that all fields provide opportunities to promote Catholic Action.

Our Efforts Are

At left: Helen Mitchell, Eleanore Westhead, Julia Sanza, Constance Cunningham and Alicia Hussey examine magazines for new suggestions.

Below: Mary Mansfield, Elizabeth Bush and Mariann Mink exchange ideas with other students at the Villanova Press Conference.

"In Villa Maria everybody reads Vimacady"—our prize publication!

Numerous awards have been bestowed upon Vimacady in past years and, endeavoring to uphold these standards, our staff has worked most diligently and patiently.

Important front-page news, worthwhile editorials, interesting features, exciting sports and unique pictures have combined to make Vimacady a favorite among all Villa Marians.

The happy smiles of our recipients are sufficient payment for our time and effort.

WILLINGNESS, co-operation and ability—words which aptly summarize the qualities of our Vimacady staff. These "budding journalists" combine their efforts for the pleasure and enjoyment of all Villa Marians.

Preserved In Print

MARY VAN WINKLE, Editor, Eleonore Westhead, who composed senior personals, Barbara O'Hara, Photography Editor and Rose Kelly, Business Manager and Associate Editor smile with the proud realization that Reflections 1952 has now joined the distinguished ranks of seniors' publications!

Reflections 1952! Our true sentiments rest within one small, precious word—"ours."

Throughout our entire four years at Villa Maria, we have reviewed each yearbook with interest and pleasure, but always we longed for "our" senior year, and anxiously awaited that beautiful edition of Reflections, engraved 1952.

In all sincerity we firmly believe that our theme, Friendship, is most worthy and symbolic of the class of '52. The true happiness of activities and classes at Green Tree has come in sharing this joy with our friends.

All that four years at Green Tree has meant to each of us—the Sisters, girls, traditions . . . countless memories—have been enfolded within the cover of Reflections.

In future years a sentimental hand will remove from treasured souvenirs, this publication. As once again we relive those happy, carefree, high school days at Villa Maria, the same old glow of pride will warm our hearts as we turn the pages of "our" yearbook.

THE COZY atmosphere of the Publications room and the helpful assistance of interested workers spices the effort of publishing a yearbook with fun.

Our Charms Are Those

THERE'S MAGIC in the violins of the seniors. Dolores McGarvey, Mary McGarvey, Patricia Nice and Felice Coady combine efforts to produce a beautiful melody.

"A TUNE THAT is mellow, played on a cello," perfectly describes the music played by Mary Louise Hetherington, Marie McFarland and Kathleen Riemann.

HELEN MITCHELL and Mary Alice Wolfington blend the rhythmic beat of their drums to complement every orchestral selection.

Music plays the leading role in the activities of Villa Maria, whether it lends its magical touch to the most informal gathering or to the most impressive ceremony. Most girls find a great thrill in their own performance of music. Each presentation invariably meets with tremendous success because it is considered first and foremost a pleasure.

To all Villa Marians is extended a two-fold opportunity in music—that of membership in the orchestra and glee club. To acquire the professional talent, which is evidenced in every performance, much individual work is required. So with the tested and wise, "practice makes perfect" as their guide, many enthusiastic students profitably spend many leisure hours pursuing the study of the art on the instrument of their choice. Satisfaction of a work well done is the musician's reward when she is so enthusiastically received by every audience.

That "Music Hath"

Versatility is the keynote of the success of the Villa's orchestra. At each and every activity, you'll enjoy the beautiful melodies produced by this group. Each section, along with the experienced members, is training prospective musicians who will fill the places of the girls about to become members of the Alumnae.

The orchestra supplies music for the school plays, Christmas entertainments and the operetta. Throughout the academic year, by way of smooth classics and majestic marches, it furnishes the musical background for many assembly programs. During Music Week, an annual event, Villa Maria is afforded the genuine pleasure of hearing its orchestra.

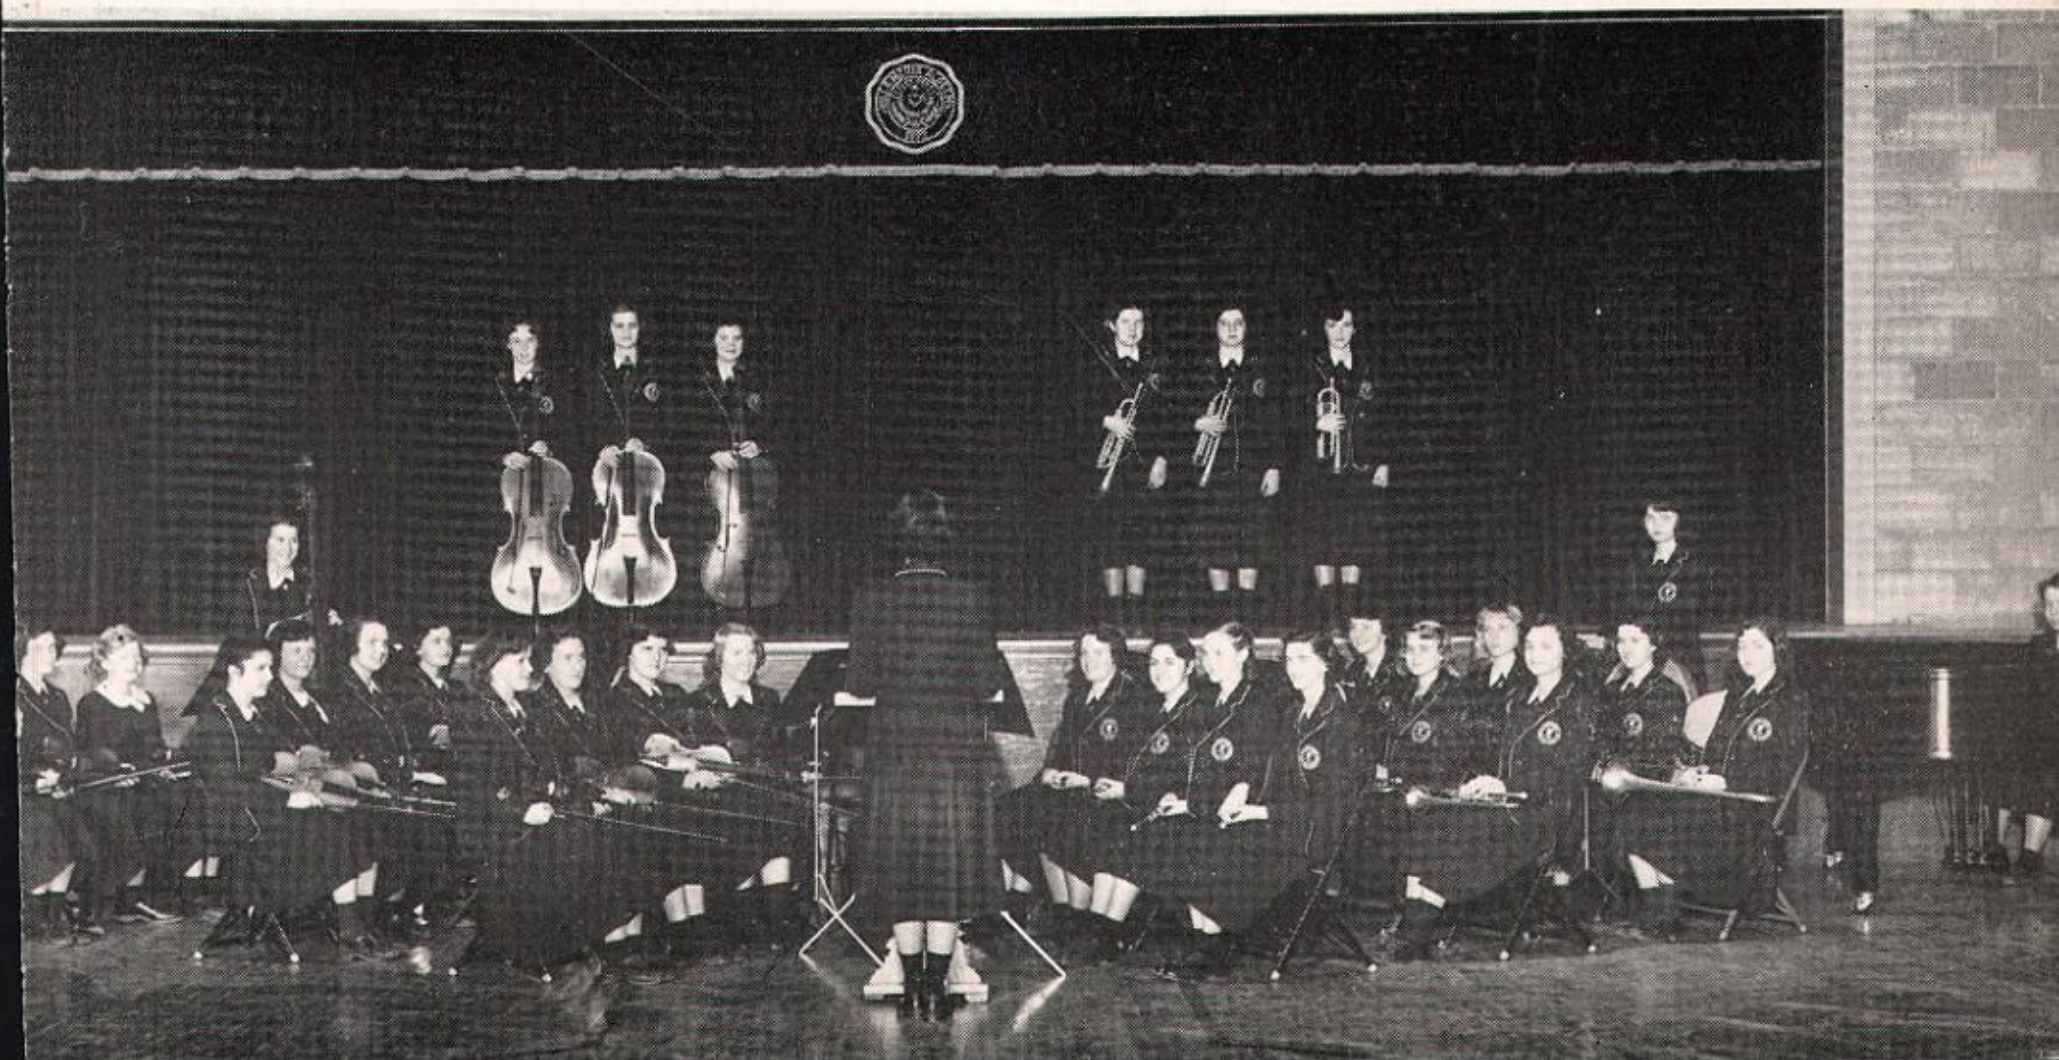

Capability, interest and appreciation blend to strike that chord of perfection in our orchestra.

ROSE KELLY, conductor, explains a strain of "Aida" to Elizabeth Ellen Ecock.

The Spirit Of Friendship

MUSIC-MINDED seniors stage an impromptu concert. While Joan Henry accompanies them, Mary McKee, Eleanore Westhead, Dolores McGarvey and Eileen Collins harmonize.

The Villa's Glee Club knows no season. It refuses to let rain dampen its spirit. Blustery winds can cool none of the deep interest it arouses. At Green Tree, the choral group is a main cog in the wheel of activities at any time.

Autumn finds them drawing from their extensive repertoire a program for the senior play. Christmas is made much more inspiring by their carols. Spring at the Villa is truly our songsters' paradise. The Glee Club raises its voice in the lilting melodies of the operetta; it blends in angelic harmony in the religious broadcasts and the May procession; and finally it swells in an ever-increasing crescendo which culminates in the graduation choruses.

Forming the basis for these public performances are the many exercises and drills these warblers practise. They gaily trill through the scales, and the final presentation is proof of their many hours of training. Much of their leisure time is taken up with vocalizing at any convenient place whether there be an audience or not.

SMALL PRACTICE sessions such as this were the prelude to the magnificent performance of the choral group at the senior play and the operetta.

Is Recorded In Song

THE COLLABORATION of Helen Mitchell and Rose Kelly furnished the beautiful melody and inspiring lyrics of our Class Song.

The boarders have a special privilege. Each year they blend tones to offer the highest tribute to the Mother of God. On one of her special feasts, the exalting music of the High Mass is sung and presented to our Model and Protectress as an evidence of our love and devotion.

Although the commuters do not share in this honor, they participate in the various assemblies and they entertain in many ways around the Villa.

The gift of song is a priceless thing, and we are grateful for the happiness it has given us.

Cherished Engravings

SHARING THE ENTHUSIASM of varsity games, the excitement of operetta time, and the enchantment of the Christmas prom with every Villa Marian has imprinted upon our hearts the true meaning of friendship.

Some Tokens Of Our

The Cap-n-Bonnet players of Villa Maria and Malvern Prep can proudly list two more dramatic ventures as startling successes. As the final "On the stage, everyone" was uttered by our director, Reverend Francis Gilligan, O.S.A., a feeling of complete satisfaction prevailed. Each—cast, chorus, orchestra, stage hands—had given in his own little or great way the touch to the production labeled—perfect.

The fall play, featuring the seniors of both schools, was acclaimed by enthusiastic audiences who welcomed Marian and the cast of country folk from the Emerald Isle with a hearty reception. We have used often the expression the "Far-Off Hills" but never have we seen it so humorously and effectively demonstrated! Romance, genuine humor and never a dull moment routine merged to produce what a theatrical critic would describe as "a smash hit".

For the spring performance once again our thespians turned to Ireland for the plot of the operetta, "Eileen". Victor Herbert's "best" afforded our actresses and musicians alike the opportunity to satisfy their yen for the theatre. Sparkling costumes, sprightly dances and catchy lyrics provided the basis for the musical portion of the show. The mystery of a hidden pirate ring and the beauty of young romance filled the need of drama.

All the sweet romance, friendly humor and charming folklore of the Emerald Isle contributed to our two-fold success in the "Far-off Hills" and "Eileen". Now that the aroma of grease paint no longer permeates the back-stage atmosphere and the fascination of entering a different sphere has faded, we may fold our autographed programs and with this permanent record compile one in the memory of our hearts.

To insure the success of future dramatic ventures, and to add new glamor to our extra-curricular activities, a new project has been introduced by the Cap-n-Bonnet Players. One-act plays are produced, directed, and enacted by members of each class. With the completion of the plays, a competition is staged with the winning play featured in an assembly. The fun and experience availed us through this medium will long be remembered.

A LITTLE BIT of Ireland right on the stage of Malvern Prep. Cast, chorus and orchestra under the direction of Miss Patricia Phelan lend their contributing factors to the operetta of the Emerald Isle, "Eileen".

FATHER GILLIGAN leads the cast and stage crew in an earnest prayer for success. This dramatic scene and tense expressions of the players of "Far-Off Hills" illustrate the power of prayer.

Beauty Here Revealed

"O COME, LET US adore Him." Yes, the age-old story of Bethlehem relived but, if possible, made even more beautiful by the added splendor of the Divine Presence. With all the traditional beauty of Christmas at the Villa, all Villa Marians opened their hearts and their lips to welcome their King of Kings.

Santa Claus' mailbox was full to capacity at Christmas time, judging from the many requests which arrived at the North Pole from the Villa Marians.

Santa Claus, the honored guest at our Christmas Banquet, patiently read each letter, much to the amusement of the girls, and promised to do his best to give everyone a merry Christmas.

Sophomores received their long-awaited class pins from Santa's helpers; seniors introduced the beautiful strains of their class song to an appreciative audience.

Gaily-wrapped packages, a tinsel tree with shining balls, and an old-fashioned manger brought joy to everyone, and the entire atmosphere of the Villa bespoke the Christmas spirit.

ALICIA HUSSEY and Elizabeth Bush, representing the student body, add the official note of Christmas by placing holly wreaths on the portals of the Villa.

In Candlelight And Song

THE JUNIORS' happiness is complete as they receive their coveted class rings from the school president, Alicia Hussey.

SANTA CLAUS captured every heart on the afternoon of the Christmas Banquet as he gaily complied with the requests of the Villa Marians. However, all thoughts of the jolly old man were quietly laid aside when, in the beauty of Carols, we lifted our minds and hearts to praise the Infant Christ.

Christmas at Villa Maria was truly the "Birthday of a King". The Little Babe reigned again in our hearts and on the stage of Green Tree in the loveliness of the Nativity scene.

Seniors experienced the pride of wearing caps and gowns and of hanging wreaths on the portals of the Villa; junior carolers saw one bright dream fulfilled—they received their class rings. Sophomores were privileged to portray the birth of Christ; freshmen "angels" knew the thrill of their first Christmas at Villa Maria.

As the "smallest angel of the Villa" placed the Babe gently in His Mother's arms, we were thrilled to be part of this inspiring tradition and we realized that this was really Christmas.

The sweet strains of "Sleep, Holy Babe" and the beautiful harmony of "O Holy Night" soon faded into the tinkle of small silver bells, as Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament approached. Then, even the stillness of falling snow was surpassed by the silent peacefulness in Green Tree as the priest raised the Sacred Host and the Newborn Infant raised His tiny hand to bless all Villa Marians and those nearest to their hearts.

Christmas at Villa Maria was perfect!

The Blue And White

MARY'S BLUE and white stands in humble contrast with the simple beauty of the May Queen, Eileen Cahill, and her court as they walk in procession through the guard of honor towards Our Lady's shrine. All nature bows at the breath-taking loveliness of this scene.

Our Magnificats surely soared to Heaven throughout the month of May, for Mary provided a brilliant sun and clear blue skies for her "day of days"—May Procession!

Pure, innocent First Communicants, devoted Children of Mary, loving parents and friends met before our garden shrine to pay homage and tribute to our dearest Mother and our Queen.

The heart of every Villa Marian lay within the hands of our privileged May Queen as she approached to crown Our Lady of Green Tree. As the garland of pure white flowers was placed upon our spotless Love's brow, the wind in the trees, and the colorful tulips inclined towards Mary's sanctuary, seemed to echo humbly our universal prayer, "O Blessed Virgin Mary, I love you. Please make me a girl like you!"

At last, with reluctant hearts we left as our sweet Mother bade, "Adieu, my children, ever dear to me."

"SMILE DOWN on thy Villa, we pray thee today . . . "The traditional hymn to Our Lady of Green Tree floats about the Villa on this warm afternoon in May, as Villa Marians and their dear ones come to offer loving devotion to the Queen of Angels and of men.

Shine Anew On Mary's Day

Villa Marians complemented the striking beauty of nature on this impressive and happy occasion. The seniors, garbed in blue caps and gowns, and the other students from the smallest baby to the oldest junior, attired in white, were appropriately symbolic of Mary's Blue and White.

The love we felt in our hearts swelled with the beautiful strains of "O Spotless Blessed Lady, we sing thy praise today."

THE LOVELINESS of the Italian gardens, graceful, colorful tulips, fragrant wisteria and bright golden sunlight reflect the beauty of her whom we honor.

EILEEN CAHILL, chosen for her Marylike qualities to represent all Villa Marians, has the humble privilege of crowning our heavenly Mother.

BENEDICTION OF the Most Blessed Sacrament made a fitting closing for this glorious occasion.

On this day we not only paid tribute to our heavenly Mother but also we expressed our affection and gratitude to our own mothers for the innumerable sacrifices they have made for us. We were quite incapable of placing our sentiments into words, but we trust that the beauty of God's flowers in our corsage gift to Mother conveyed a small portion of the love we truly feel.

We know that Mary, too, was happy to share this beloved day with her sweetest children, the children closest to her heart—our own dear mothers.

"LET'S PLAY, TEAM" is the constant cheer of our able captains, Joan Henry and Patricia Bourne. They smile their satisfaction with the spirit displayed by their team members.

WITH ALL TEAM members poised for action, Patricia Bourne, captain, bullies at center. The final result—3-1 victory over St. Basil.

The Villa's athletic program is far-ranging, for it includes archery, basketball, bowling, hockey, riding, softball, swimming, tennis and volley ball. With such a varied schedule each girl has the opportunity to select a sport of her own choice. The competition is keen; therefore, interest is always top-notch in the Athletic Association.

The competitive spirit lives in the Blue and White teams. Members, evenly matched in number and ability, are constantly vying for the coveted banner. Team points are awarded for scholastic aptitude as well as for the various drives and athletic events. The friendly rivalry developed here is strong character building.

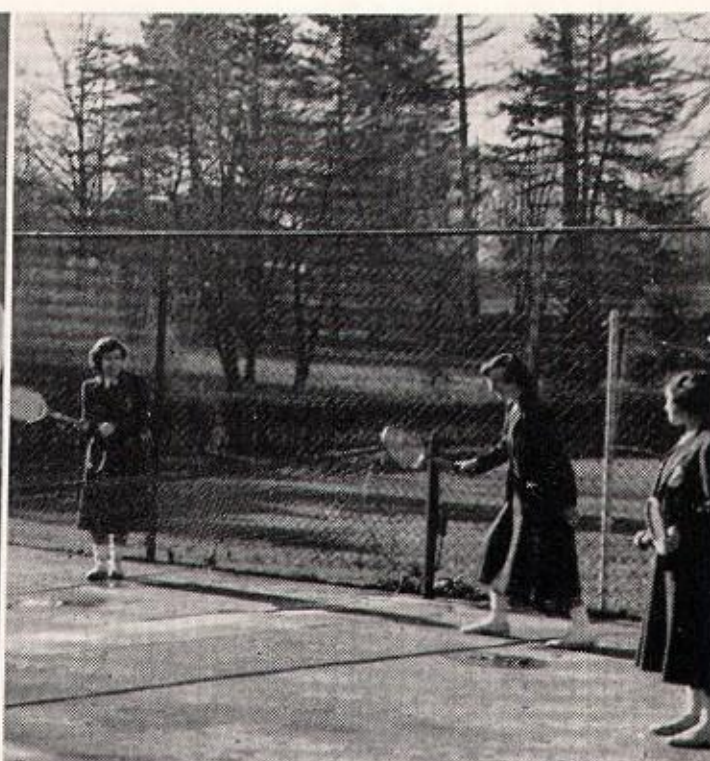

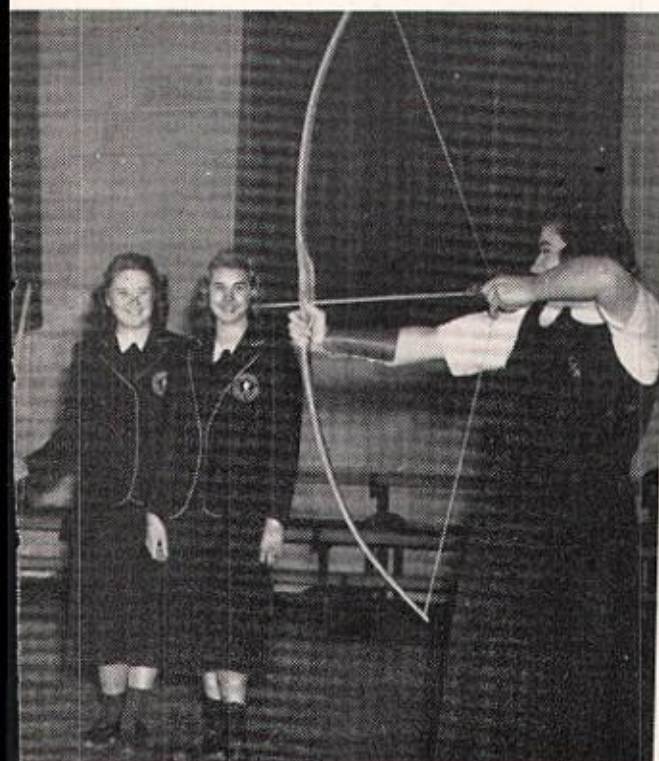

Bowling, swimming and riding enthusiasts pride themselves on their club activities. Led on by a capable captain, each club tournament is a display of athletic prowess and of qualities of good sportsmanship.

The extensive plans for the year fifty-one to fifty-two have been completed successfully and received with spirited participation. The Athletic Association, its moderator and officers, rate our nomination for the season's "all-stars".

PATRICIA BOURNE leaps high as she takes a lay up shot. Joan Henry and Theresa Giordano cut quickly to be ready for the rebound and so the Villa's score mounts.

Though one of the most recent additions to the Villa's athletic program, the hockey team has overcome the handicaps of youthfulness mainly through the eagerness of its members and supporters.

Since all the academies do not have a hockey team, the schedule was limited to only four games. We bowed to Mercy, Melrose and Mount Saint Joseph with a slight margin in score, while our varsity treated Saint Basil to a 3-1 score.

The problem of an unconditioned field had its redeeming features and greatly supplemented our varsity schedule. Immaculata College graciously consented to share its field with us. The practice sessions gave an opportunity to observe and correct many faults.

Judging the season on a won-lost basis would be a grave error, since the experience gained can't be overestimated. Next year holds great prospects for brighter things.

From Saint Mary's game, the curtain riser for the current campaign, to the applause of the Chestnut Hill encounter, our basketball season was a "smash-hit". Although not victorious in every contest, our girls displayed the spirit and sportsmanship that determine the success of every game.

The dual system of varsities proved itself workable again this year. This unbeatable combination of a praying and playing varsity, spurred by the indomitable animation of all Villa Marians, is responsible for the great season of '52. Although fashion doesn't usually figure in basketball, this year the varsity stepped from a style magazine in newly-designed uniforms.

Even though sporadic flashes of brilliance were evident in the different games, every contest was a team triumph by our whole team of "stars"—and not a personal victory.

"WE OF THE Villa say 'hello' now", cheerleaders Alice Louise Riemann, Beau Smith, Jane Marie Gerlach, Patricia Melody and Marie McFarland sing a cheery welcome to a visiting team.

AN ANXIOUS group of seniors add the finishing touches in the powder room before they join their escorts.

PATRICIA MILLER and her escort arrive at the Merion Tribute House with happy anticipation of the evening's gaiety.

"The loveliest night of the year"—and truly it was—The night was clear, the music enchanting, the girls gracefully dressed, and the atmosphere delightful. Yes, the Christmas formal was complete in every detail. The Merion Tribute House once again provided the setting for our social highlight of the year.

The co-chairmen, Miss Dolores Farinella and Miss Mary Jane Patterson, through their careful planning of the prom, vivified our every dream of a wonderful evening. Our chaperones, Mrs. John Hussey and Mrs. James Smith, just by their very presence, added the finishing touch to our "night of nights".

Our dedication of dances expressed so perfectly our appreciation to all who make up the happy circle of Villa Marians. The singing of our School Song after the Grand March was a fitting tribute to our Alma Mater.

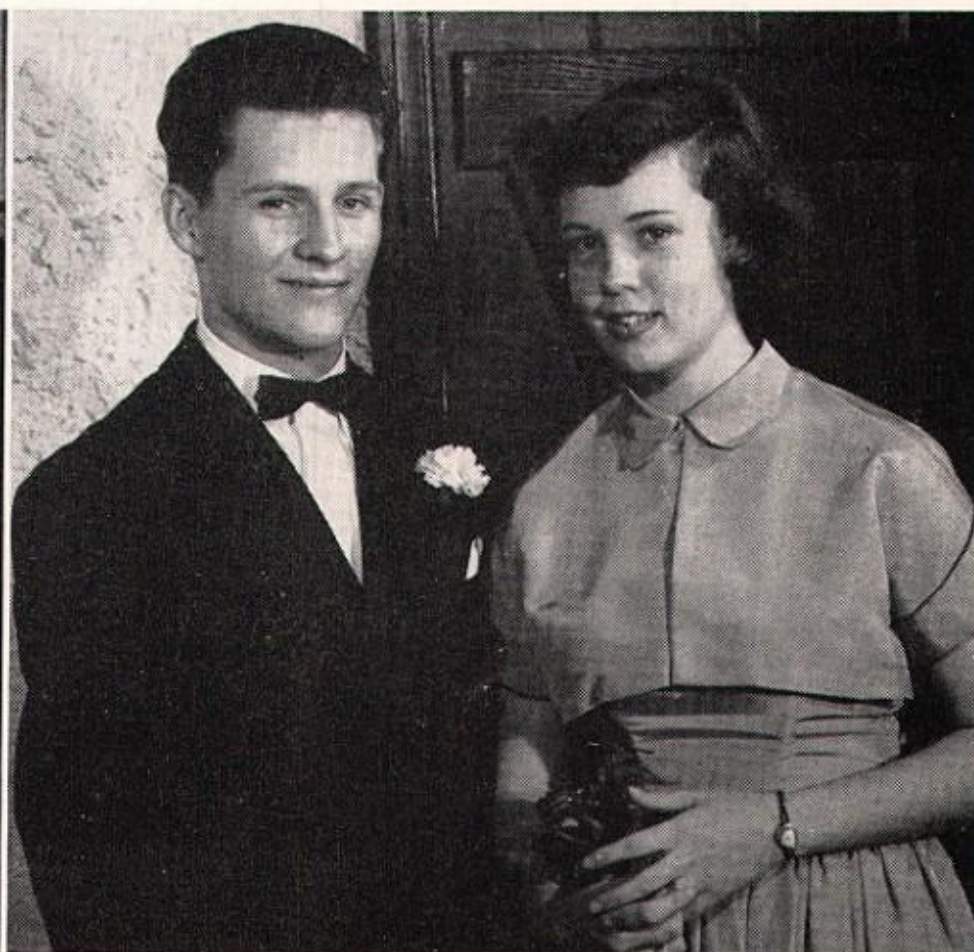

With the final dance and the last goodbye, all Villa Marians advanced one step farther down the lane of memories, but with each succeeding step, "the melody will linger on".

Our Class Song, though composed by only two members of the class of '52, completely expresses the feelings which lie deep in the heart of each of us seniors. Truly, we are grateful to the Sisters and to all at Green Tree who have filled these four short years with memories we will cherish for a lifetime.

May you always remember the class of '52, and in the words of our beloved Class Song,

"Our hearts will remain here still."

For Our Class Song

We are closing the days of girlhood
To V. M. A. we'll be true.
No mem'ries are cherished fonder
Than those of the white and blue.

We bid good-bye to the Villa,
Our hearts will remain here still.
To Mary the class of fifty-two Pledges honor, love, and will.

We are grateful to Alma Mater,
For Sisters' loving care.
To all at Green Tree we say
Farewell and a constant prayer.

A Festive Occasion

With a song in our hearts and a tear in our eyes, we pay a final tribute to our parents, teachers, friends, and Alma Mater in the beloved festivities of Senior Banquet and Senior Sing.

Following the gaiety of Senior Banquet, the fondest memories of parting seniors are recalled in the beauty of song.

THE BANQUET provides the little-sister class with the opportunity to display its talents in many fields. The sophomores proudly prove themselves capable entertainers and hostesses. The warm May evening, the graceful girls in flowing dinner dresses and the delightful entertainment combine to make the banquet a gay and successful social event.

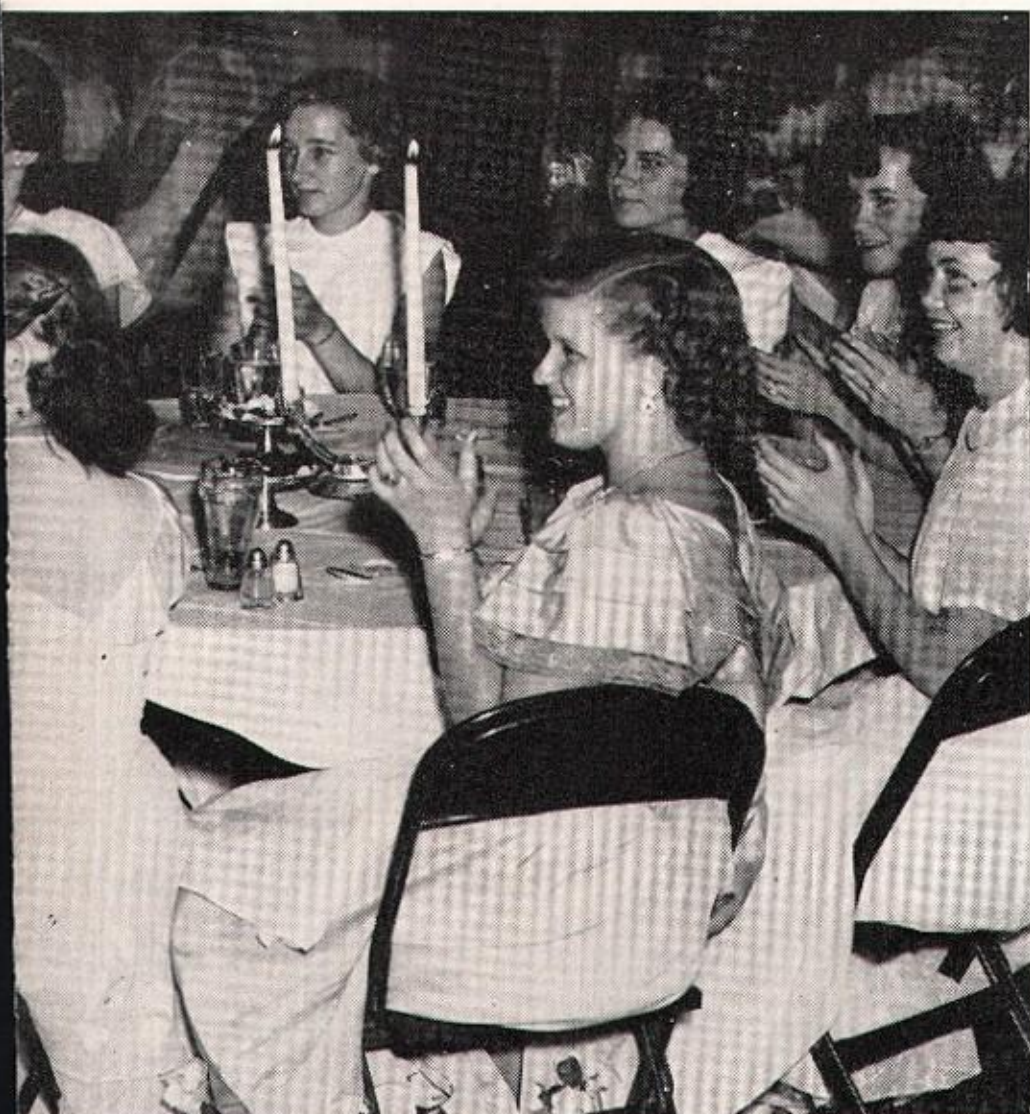

"THAT SPECIAL TOUCH" is added by Alice Louise Riemann, Joan Beechwood, Rose Kelly, Theresa Giordano, Elizabeth Lange and Joan Henry in a lovely trumpet solo. The true tones and beautiful harmony thrill the entire audience and render a worthy tribute to our seniors.

For Parting Friends

The class of '52 has completed its happiest days. At last graduation has approached and no activities are so impressive as those which precede it. Among the highlights in the seniors' archives are Senior Banquet and Senior Sing. Memories of these events will be cherished in the annals of all Villa Marians, but for the senior, each word that is uttered and every song that is sung is treasured in her heart. During these festivities she relives her four happy years at Green Tree and with melody bids farewell to the Villa and all its lovely traditions.

PLEASURE REFLECTS in the faces of these juniors as they anticipate the time when Senior Banquet will be held in their honor.

WHEN THE FINAL words of grace are pronounced, the seniors don caps and gowns for one of the most inspiring ceremonies of the year—Senior Sing. The seniors sing their final farewell to Villa Maria, Sisters, parents, and friends, binding all their experiences with the circlet of golden memories.

A Fond Goodbye From Each

KATHRYN WUNDER, the last of the seniors to receive her diploma, smiles with pride at the realization of a goal attained—a pride reflected in the hearts of all.

SHARING THE happiness of Graduation Day with our dear Lord, the graduates offer a prayer of thanksgiving for all who helped them during these years at Villa Maria and ask guidance for the future.

Walking down the aisle on Graduation Day seems like walking in a dream—a dream which was first formulated in the eyes of a freshman and which grew brighter and more vivid in the carefree days of sophomore year. As juniors, the traditions of the Villa provided the highlight of our dream; the climax was supplied by the dignities of senior year. Yes, Graduation Day is truly like a dream—a dream which fades before the misty eyes of our graduates—a dream which has finally been fulfilled!

Graduation Day means parting from all we hold dear, but it also means an opportunity to express our gratitude to our parents and teachers, who, through their sacrifices and kindness, have given us a most precious and intangible gift—a Catholic education! Now, to them, and to all at Green Tree, we say 'farewell and a constant prayer'.

Of Us The Class Of '52

SENIORS WHISPER a prayer to Mary that she will guide our future lives as she has so lovingly protected our years at Green Tree.

CALL FOR HELP . . .
BEFORE THE FIRE

If your home were on fire you would call for help. And you would get it, too, because modern fire departments are fast, efficient, dependable. But the most important call is the one before the fire—a call to a North America agent to discuss the proper insurance program to protect your home and its furnishings, from loss by fire or other perils.

See a North America Agent. His time is your time. It will pay you to make the most of it.
